TRIAL.

THE COURT SENDS THE PRISONER ON AN APPLICATION FOR BAIL.

INTERESTING ALGUMENT.

Speeches of Messrs. Guigon, Johnson, Thomas, and Young.

BAIL REFUSED.

The announcement in the morning papers that the case of J. Jeter Phillips, charged with the murder of his wife, would be argued before the County Court brought a large crowd to the court-house on Satur-maining all night came to town on Mon-bis own humble opinion the cause of his day. Fortunately, the weather was cooler day for Miss Turner. We establish that client was not only defensible but impregthan on the previous days of the trial, and the spectators listened with more satisfaction than when sweltering with the heat which has oppressed court, bar, witnesses, and audience during the past week. Ministers of the Gospel, lawyers, physicians, farmers, merchants, mechanics, and a host of do-nothings, with a few ladies, mingled promiscuously in the throng, while a great black cleud hovered in the rear and about the door. All listened with profound attention, and hung eagerly upon the lips of the speakers, who reviewed the particulars of the dark, mysterious tragedy, and urged with vehemence the guilt or innocence of the accused. The prisoner sat in his accustomed place, and perhaps with more serious air, but with neither surly look nor hardened demeanor, waited his fate.

Miss Virginia Ragland, the last witness, was sworn for the defence, and testified that the prisoner was at her house on the 26th of February. We had tableaux at Mr. Chesterman's on the 22d of February and also at Mr. Priddy's on the 1st March. We had a rehearsal on the Tuesday before Mr. W. W. Phillips and the accused were at our house. I know it was Tuesday because the rehearsal had been appointed for that night.

Cross-examined: I think the gentlemen came between 8 and 9 o'clock; it was certainly after tea. I have known the accused since July. He has been at our house four times since Christmas. He acted as a single gentleman on all occasions: I never had the least idea of his being a married man. Mr. Young: Did you consider him a beau ? Witness: I certainly did not. Mr. Young (apologizing): Did he ever demean himself as a gentleman particularly attached to you? Witness: No sir. To Mr. Guigon: Mr. W. W. Phillips and the accused went with us to the rehearsal. W. W. Phillips recalled : I remember to have gone with the accused in February BRANCH OF THE UNITED STATES MINT last, and that he went home from Mr. Priddy's and stayed all night with me. We took tea at our house, went from there to Mr. Ragland's, and thence to the rehearsal. Mr. Johnson then announced that the defence had no further testimony to offer, and the Attorney for the Commonwealth making the same announcement, the evidence was closed. Mr. Young: I ask the court to send the prisoner on. Mr. Johnson: And I, sir, ask your worships to discharge the prisoner. No further speeches were made, and after a moment's consultation between the magistrates the decision of the court was announced.

Mr. Justice Pleasants: The court decides, gentlemen, to send the prisoner on. Mr. Johnson: I rise, if your worships please, to apply to the court for bail.
